

UNITED STATES HACKERSPACES

Hackerspaces (also referred to as a hacklab, or makerspace) can be viewed as open community labs incorporating elements of machine shops, workshops and/or studios where hackers can come together to share resources and knowledge to build and make things.<sup>[1]</sup>

COUNTER-CONSUMERIST CULTURE

More than just a passing fad, hackerspaces are becoming a mainstay in many cities around the globe.

157 REGISTERED US HACKERSPACES

1100 ACTIVE WORLDWIDE HACKERSPACES

MAP (rollover)

SOURCES:
hackerspaces.org
multiplottr.com
Saini, Angela. DIY Gadgetry. BBC News. June 19, 2009.